

PRESS RELEASE

20 something (TX: Sunday 29 May @ 1.30pm)

Fast becoming sex symbols in their own right, the luscious 20something hosts Namhla Ndlovu and Khethiwe Kunene are in the house. This week the duo makes their usual appearance as they bring you yet another entertainment filled episode of this funky magazine, every Sunday at 1.30pm - free on e.

Who ever said F1 is only for the lads? We interview Joy Monareng to prove that the belief is as untrue as the false hope some Schumacher fans have at his chances of clinching the title for the sixth year running. Joy, who is one of the first female South African racing drivers, is in studio to chat not only about her life on and off circuit but also about why she got into racing seeing as though it's usually associated with men.

Mirror, mirror on the wall. Who is the fairest of them all? It's a fickle world out there so we take to the streets to find out from a variety of celebrities and models what beauty is and how do they define it? Some say it's only in the eye of the beholder ...yeah, right!

The movie preview of the week is "House of Wax" starring (the overexposed and talent-less) Paris Hilton and Brian Van Holt. When car troubles sideline a group of teens in the quiet town of Athelston, Iowa, they are directed to the only business that can offer assistance, a creepy gas station owned by a suave bad boy named Bo. The stranded kids are lured deeper and deeper into Bo's entangling web... (This one is filled with award winning moments, it's sure to win big at the Razzies next year!)

Hope your dancing shoes are ready because the music video of the week will have you busting a move as we close off the show with Kelis' funky dance tune 'Millionaire' featuring the equally funky Andre 3000.
