2008 is here and it's time to ring in the year with laughter, good cheer, and lots of fun. A keen 20something? Then what a better way to start your year than tuning in with Namhla Ndlovu and Kyle White who are ready to get you into the loop on what's hot and happening around Mzansi on 20 something, every Sunday – free on e.tv.

TX: 13 January at 12:55pm

20something chats to the gorgeous Cara Judd who hails from Design Time College about her prestigious award – the “Elle decoration store award”, which she won last year. The show also takes a look at the design itself and find out more about the inspiration behind it.

Then navigate the popular Sakhumzi in Soweto – nestled in the heart of Orlando West famous Vilakazi street, with its rich historical background that boast two Nobel prize winners – the restaurant offers traditional dishes in an urban setting.

Then DJ Buhle hustles up her talent as a DJ.

The movie preview of the week is the Comedy/Drama “Darjeeling Limited” which hits the cinema’s across the country on January 18.

For something different the show plays out with an Afrikaans music video, “Dancibaar Vir Aeroplanes”.

TX: 20 January at 12:40pm

Namhla and Kyle interview 20something’s “Gadget Man” Hannes. Ig gadgets are your things then you will get a chance to find out more about a rather unique way of trading products that seem to aid people in the most interesting ways.

The show then navigates the “Nelson Mandela Square” in Sandton City, which was designed to bring to life an Italian styled Piazza under the African sky.

The hustler for this week is Sfiso, who takes us on a journey through his life as a photographer.

The movie preview of the week is the dramatic ben Affleck flick “Gone Baby Gone” based on the Dennis Lehane novel about two Boston area detectives investigating a little girl’s kidnapping, which ultimately turns into a crisis both professionally and personally.

The show plays out with Malini’s “Jikelele”.
