Cheaters Returns

TX: Monday 9 February at 9pm

The reality series, Cheaters, makes a comeback in an all-new timeslot on Monday evenings at 9pm as of 9th February 2009.

Host Joey Greco leads viewers through the difficult experience of confrontation as cheating partners are exposed.

The show first introduces the victim and explains his or her situation and the gut wrenching feeling they have when their special someone is being unfaithful. Cheaters Detective Agency gets to work by keeping the suspected cheater under 24 hour surveillance to monitor their activities. If the person is caught being unfaithful, the victim is shown the incriminating evidence.

A major decision then rests of their shoulders: whether or not to confront their cheating and lying loved one. In most instances confrontation is chosen while the cheater is in the company of the lover. An argument or violent clash ensues as emotions run high. The victim then either returns home with the Cheaters crew or the unfaithful partner.

HISTORY

The show was created by Texan divorce attorney Bobby Goldstein in 2000. Goldstein is heavily involved in the show as a writer and producer.

He has had two unsuccessful marriages due to cheating and is the father of four. Goldstein has ventured into online dating by starting a site called NO cheaters.
