Forgive & Forget: Old Skool Values
TX: 25 March 2008 at 8pm

This week's dose of Forgive & Forget – every Tuesday at 8pm – takes a look at how African culture seeks to teach the younger generation to be respectful of their elders. Therefore, when a young person decides to defy that notion, you have to go back and assess what could have gone wrong.

Hetru Selabi is the prodigal young man who disobeyed his grandfather and left home at the age of 18. He is now 25 years old, has seen the errors of his ways and needs to apologise to his grandfather, Ramogolo Alfred, for all the anguish he has caused him. How does he intend going about making this right ... and will his grandfather forgive him?

This week on Forgive & Forget we take a journey with grandson and grandfather as they seek ways to go back to how things once were between them. Are the grandfather's values too Old School? You be the judge, as Doris walks with the pair on their path to seeking common ground.
