

PRESS RELEASE

Go green or go home!

Adopting an eco friendly lifestyle doesn't only mean hemp trousers and using organic products. As the world wakes up to the realisation that we need to be friendly to the environment and our world in general, many have come to adopt eco friendly lifestyles. But those don't need to be drab and uninteresting, so this week 20something is going Eco chic! Environmental friendly products and living is what 20somethings should aim to achieve as they become more and more independent. 20something has discovered this is actually a trend most happening amongst the hip in our midst. This week on 20something...

- Save the planet! Eric Bigot inspires 20somethings to think outside the box with our very own custom made Zenkaya.
- Even gadgets can be green! Take a look at some D.I.Y gadgets that anyone can use to survive in case of a power cut in this week's gadget review.
- Pimpin' for the green revolution! Saskia Wagner tells 20something viewers all there is to know about solar power panels and home kits.
- Plus, you get the low down on collector's item DVDs that you must have in your house.

Green is so in right now, so get ready to chilli out in an eco way with 20something, this Wednesdays at 8pm.
