

Press Release

OCTOBER IS HALLOWEEN MONTH ON e

Halloween means different things to different people. To some it's an excuse to dress up in weird and wonderful costumes and eat enough sweets to keep you bouncing off the walls for the rest of the year, and to others it's licence to wreak havoc. Why choose a chocolate treat when you could choose a chaotic trick?

And this is part of the reason Halloween gets such a bad rap. That, and the fact that all the crazies come out.

The mere mention of the word Halloween conjures up thoughts of all things scary. From ghosts and monsters to witches and warlocks, there's no end to all the things that can frighten the living daylights right out of you.

There are many theories as to what the origins of Halloween are, but whether it was a harvest festival, an observance of the eve of All Saints Day or a Pagan festival, today it's a mixture of old traditions that are celebrated around the world. And on e.tv, we decided that one day isn't enough, so each weekend in the month of October you can look forward to frights and delights of the film kind.

13 Ghosts (Friday, 6 October at 10.35pm) gets the festival started with the story of a widower and his children who inherit a strange home of light that holds a dark secret. The incredibly cute Johnathan Lipnicki plays Tony, a loner obsessed with vampires in The Little Vampire (Saturday, 7 October at 8pm).

In Friday the 13th's movie The Blob (at 10.35pm), a vile malignant life form crashes to Earth and consumes everything in its path as it grow and grows. Saturday's 8pm movie Addams Family Values stars the inimitable Raul Julia as the tango-loving head of the family.

For a horror masterpiece, be sure not to miss Candyman (Friday, 20 October at 10.15pm), and after you've had all the sweetness scared out of you, catch Ghostbusters (Saturday, 21 October at 8pm).

For a blood-sucking tale of a half man, half vampire consumed by a desire to avenge the curse of his birth and save the human race from a blood-drenched Armageddon, catch Wesley Snipes in Blade 2 (Friday, 27 October at 10.15pm). Ghostbusters II (Saturday, 28 October at 8pm) reunites the all-star casts to save the world from sinister supernatural forces while having a bit of a laugh.
