Third Watch : Season Six Saturday 22 July at 6.05pm

The sixth and last season of the ever-popular series, Third Watch, returns to e.tv on Saturday 22 July at 6.05pm.

It tells the stories of the members of the 55 Squad -- the police, fire-fighters and paramedics who work the "third watch" between 4 p.m. and 12 a.m. -- the finest and the bravest who protect and serve the citizens of New York.

The show consists of a culturally diverse and talented cast, and often incorporates real issues in each episode. Kim Zambrano (Kim Raver) takes on the lead paramedic responsibilities, and is assisted by cocky medic Carlos Nieto (Anthony Ruivivar) and newcomer Grace Foster (Cara Buono).

Across the street, the police of the 55th precinct include hardened long-time cop John "Sully" Sullivan (Skipp Sudduth), who battles alcoholism and the never-ending stress of the job. However, he remains a mentor of sorts to headstrong Ty Davis Jr. (Coby Bell).

In order to have time during the day to help her teenage sister raise a baby, Sasha Monroe (Nia Long) works the "third watch" as well. In addition, Maurice "Bosco" Boscorelli's (Jason Wiles) "supercop" mentality frequently gets him into trouble, especially with his superior, elite Anti-crime Unit Sergeant Maritza Cruz (Tia Texada).

Meanwhile, stalwart police officer Faith Yokas (Molly Price), along with her husband, Fred (Chris Bauer), raise two children, including a difficult teenager, Emily (Bonnie Dennison).

In the first episode, Cruz (Texada) and a large contingent of police officers are at the hospital dealing with a witness, their own injuries and other victims from two separate bombings.

Suddenly, five men with bullet-proof vests and submachine guns arrive and cause carnage as they try to obliterate the cops and kill the man who can implicate the killing spree's mastermind.
