

Press Release

SIX FEET UNDER IS BACK FOR ITS FOURTH SEASON

Your whole life is leading up to this...

It's been a long wait, but 6 February 2006 sees the dysfunctional Fisher family return with their darkly comic look at life and death.

Six Feet Under creator Alan "American Beauty" Ball's extraordinary series raised the bar for quality television programmes and, according to The New York Times, the show is "required viewing in the canon of pop culture." The fourth season of this award-winning show will not disappoint, but will bring much change in the Fisher household...

Eldest son Nate (Peter Krause) has adjusted to his career as a funeral director but now faces life as a single father after the death of his wife, while his ex-girlfriend, Brenda (Rachel Griffiths), finds herself torn between a new love and the feelings she and Nate still share. Younger, gay son David (Michael C. Hall) struggles to maintain his relationship with frustrated former cop Keith (Matthew St. Patrick). Matriarch Ruth (Frances Conroy), newly married, awakens to the possibilities in her life, while her rebellious teen daughter, Claire (Lauren Ambrose), tries to make sense of life's tragedies and find happiness. Longtime mortician and now co-owner of Fisher & Diaz, Federico (Freddy Rodriguez) has found respect as a partner at work, but at home his marriage is in crisis.

In the season premiere, Nate finds himself at odds with Lisa's family in his attempt to honour his late wife's last wishes. David and Keith look for new ways to start their relationship over. Federico seeks a priest for absolution, while his wife, Vanessa (Justina Machado) tires of her sister, Angelica (Melissa Marsala). Claire shares a secret with ex-lover Russell (Ben Foster). Brenda gets to know her neighbour Joe (Justin Theroux) better. And Ruth sings the praises of her new husband, George (James Cromwell).

So for better living through death, be sure not to miss the new season of Six Feet Under, Mondays at 9pm. Only on e.

For the latest Six Feet Under pictures, contact:

Marisa Hendricks
e.tv Publicity Writer
Tel: 021 481 4723
Fax: 021 481 4540
Marisa.Hendricks@etv.co.za