The Rough Cut Sunday 21 May at 6.30pm

This coming Sunday: Free State based journalist Charlene Stanley tackles the topic of how to tell the South African AIDS story. She shares some of the lessons she's learnt through her contact with a 13-year-old AIDS orphan from Lesotho.

This insightful personal account documents the daily struggles and hardships of a young girl who has had to grow up too quickly. Running a household and looking after three young boys with almost no support – while she's still in primary school.

At the same time we follow the journalist's personal journey – from her initial idea of doing a story on the pain and suffering of an AIDS orphan, to her respect and admiration for a young girl who has risen above her circumstances.

Real stories. Real people behind them on The Rough Cut, Sunday evening at 6.30pm.
