Tornado Warning Monday 4 + 11 December at 8pm

ILL WIND, BLOW AWAY

On Monday 4 December at 8pm, e.tv brings you Tornado Warning, the first part of a two episode series. This show is a made-for-TV nail-biter, starring Gerald McRaney as Dr. Jake Arledge.

McRaney portrays a scatter-brained meteorologist (and specialist on tornadoes), who thinks his new early warning system in storm prediction works. However, his demonstration fails and his reputation suffers when a powerful storm devastates a city.

Fortunately, Jake's handed a second chance when a young graduate student, Mark Scott (Steve Braun), tells him that he knows how to fix the problems in Jake's invention. Mark's solution works, revealing a deadly F4 tornado about to strike a nearby small town.

They try to warn the authorities, but their calls are dismissed as the work of crackpots. Left with no other alternative, they race to the small town of Reeds, and successfully warn the families in the direct line of a tornado.

On the way out of Reeds, they encounter another tornado. It blows past them, but there's another twister on its way. Tornado Warning is crammed with wall-to-wall action and superb photography.
