They came, they saw, they conquered...South African filmmakers walked away last week with the most acclaimed prize in the industry – The Oscar for Best Foreign Language Film. Director, Gavin Hood's Tsotsi scooped top honours before an audience of millions at the 2006 Academy Awards.

The film won several highly acclaimed awards this year at festivals across the world, the latest victory a sure sign that Tsotsi continues to go from strength to strength.

Once just a small-town boy, Presley Chweneyagae arrived home on Sunday to a heroes' welcome. His co-star Terry Pheto, along with other cast members, joined him in Soweto to greet riotous fans.

This week, 3rd Degree looks at the journey and the scenes behind the movie that has set South Africa abuzz.
