

Press Release

LET 20SOMETHING ENTERTAIN YOU! Sunday, 09 October @ 1.30pm

This week 20something meets up with Mzansi's version of the three tenors, goes technical in our career section and introduces you to four vengeful brothers... It's all happening this Sunday as Namhla Ndlovu and Khethiwe Kunene take you where it's at, free on e.

On the couch this week we have the Afro Tenors, Agos Moahi, Given Mabena and Lucky Sibande ka Songo. This 20something trio has made their mark on the South African opera scene, teaming up from a young age to form one of SA's most potent classical groups. Although all three are classically trained and have performed in some of the world's most renowned operas like 'The Marriage of Figaro' and 'La Boheme', they have opted to perform operatic versions of traditional African songs like 'Pata Pata', 'Meadowlands' and 'Malaika' - breathing classical and very powerful operatic life into songs that are solidly part of South African history.

A career in radio could sound glamorous - if you are the DJ that is - but have you ever wondered how the whole show is put together? Well wonder no more as we go behind the scenes of a radio station and find out more about the people behind the shows and DJ's ...the technical crews.

The movie preview of the week is "Four Brothers", starring Mark Wahlberg, Tyrese Gibson, Andre Benjamin, and Jack Mercer. Four adopted brothers come to avenge their mother's death following what appears to be a random killing in a grocery store robbery. However, the brothers' investigation of their mother's death reveals more nefarious activities involving one brother's business dealings with a notorious local hoodlum. In the mix there are two cops, who could be involved in the case for completely different reasons...

The music video of the week comes from Ciara, the First Lady of Crunk 'n B, with "Oh".
